ENCLOSURES

3. We understand that samples will be consigned to the various laboratories listed above and that the analysis will be conducted under the direction of the chiefs of the respective laboratories as listed. As we understand, however, you are the U.S. Army Surgeon General's consultant for Veterinary Laboratory Services. Therefore, you are responsible for the conditions of the importations.

4. Upon arrival in the United States, the samples must be examined by a representative of Plant Protection and Quarantine (PPQ) and, if found to be frozen and apparently free from exotic plant pests and diseases, will be released to the carrier for delivery to one of the above laboratories for the scientific analysis. Admissible fresh samples will be inspected and must be found free of injurious plant pests, diseases, and other prohibited articles.

5. At the conclusion of the tests, all residues and unused fruit or vegetable material must be destroyed by incineration or by autoclaving.

6. The facilities where the work is performed are subject to inspection by representatives of PPQ.
